Sainsbury's first supermarket to offer shoppers GP services

In a bid to help meet the growing demand for primary care access outside of normal working hours, Sainsbury's looks set to become the first supermarket chain to house a GP clinic alongside its more traditional product offerings.

From March, Sainsbury's in Heaton Park will become the UK's first supermarket to offer appointments with local GPs in the evenings and weekends in-store, as one of three pilot schemes commissioned by Heywood, Middleton and Rochdale Primary Care Trust to expand out-of-hours care. Doctors will have full secure access to patient medical details and be able to make referrals or update records, and the surgery will be located in a fully equipped consultation room at Sainsbury's next to the pharmacy. The success of the scheme will be assessed by the University of Cumbria over a six-month period, after which it may be expanded to other stores across the region. "The Doctors In Store pilot is very innovative and it is fantastic that we have the backing of such a reputable organisation as Sainsbury's," commented John Pierce, chairman of HMRPCT. "The BARDOC and Locally Enhanced Service pilots will also be up and running at the same time to ensure that all residents across the Borough have access to extended GP hours," he added.

GSK plans UK/Ireland job cuts to stay competitive

Drug giant GlaxoSmithKline has announced a round of job cuts at a manufacturing facility in Cork, Ireland, to address excess capacity, and that 330 are a previously reported set to go in Ulverston, global restructuring UK, as the group grapples with climbing costs to garner annual savings of up to £700 million by 2010. The company says it world's second largest drug maker unveiled a £1.5 billion restructuring plan, or an "operational excellence programme", with cuts in manufacturing (40%), selling and administration (40%) and R&D (20%).

CAT M LEADS TO CUTS

Contractors are having to reduce staffing levels due to category M clawbacks, Fifty four per cent of pharmacy owners said they had experienced cash flow problems because of October's £400 million cut in generics purchase profits. One respondent said: "Thanks to category M, my overdraft is now £40,000." Others had been forced to reduce staff numbers and hours, their own salaries and stock holding, they said. Though just 13 contractors were represented in the survey, IPF chief executive David Wood said there were "hundreds" badly affected by category M.
